Sold at South Side drug store.

About the Size of It.

The Frankfort correspondent of the Lexington Leader says he has been paying attention to the capital removal question, and finds a very general desire on the part of the delegates to settle the matter once for all. He has interviewed a number of delegates as to their preference, and, even with his predilection for Lexington, quotes most of them in favor of leaving the capital where it is. Most of those who say they want a change are disposed to be funny and ask the honor for their own county seats. Still the Leader manages to reach the conclusion that the capital Lebanon the choice of a number of delegates from Southwestern Kentucky, and throws cold water on the Falls City by pretending to discover that it is unpopular among the delegates.—Courier-Journal.

J. W. GAYLE, Druggist.

Among the Colored Citizens.

Miss Annie Laura C. Merritt left last week to accept a school at Alton, Ky.

The tin labeled invitation to attend the emancipation proclamation anniversary at the First Baptist Church was carried out Sunday without any preparations being made by our good citizens, who would have felt delighted in lending their aid to such a grand cause. But a fair sized crowd was in attendance Monday night, considering the short notice of Sunday; and out of the great crowd of speakers who were to address our people there was but one, Rev. I. H. Welch, who delivered a very grand speech, and was loudly applauded. Had he not attended the meeting it would have been a failure.

Sunday, Sept. 2d, Wyatt Beatty, Jr., and J. W. Woolfolk will run an excursion to Lexington to witness the closing of the M. E. Conference. As this will be about the last of the season, our people who desire to meet their friends in the above city should embrace this opportunity.

The remains of Marion Thomas were brought to this city for interment.

Mrs. Ed. Thomas, of Chicago, has been in the city for several weeks visiting her mother, Mrs. Woolfolk.

The Duds, Jr., have established a club here in opposition to the Powder Horn Club. They propose to put the gilt edge to their entertainments. Now with the two rival clubs, what is to prevent us from having a good time during the winter? But the writer will say a prize will be given to the first to come forward with something to show that they are possessed with the entertaining qualities the other club has.

Mr. Charley Fremont is still confined to his bed, and suffered very much the first part of the week.

Nothing has been heard from our own Clay, Talbutt and Richey Minstrels since they left the peaceful Craw for their tour of the surrounding counties.

Mrs. Julia Ann Smith, widow of the late Peter Smith, died Thursday night, after a lingering illness. She was one of the wealthiest of our race in the city, was a true Christian woman and greatly beloved by all who knew her.

Mr. James Mapping, of Lexington, is in the city this week and will remain five months.

Miss Loula Dodson spent a pleasant week in Lexington.

The ladies and gents who attended the Lexington fair have spoken very highly of it, and the good entertainment received in the above city. The writer was unable to attend, owing to business.

Mrs. Lillian Reed died Thursday at 5 a. m. She was well known in this city, and was a relative of Mr. Henry Reed.

The report for the year of Rev. Turner, the pastor of the St. John A. M. E. Church, of this city, was read Sunday night and a copy was furnished each visitor and member. It is neatly gotten up and proves to be satisfactory to the many members, so much so that the members will try and ask that Brother Turner be returned to this Church by the Conference at the proper time.

Impressions of Washington.

My ride on the morning I stepped out of the city, my first impression was that of a great, barren, covered with sage brush only. In another portion of the State, however, the prevailing winds shifted the sands in a way as to render the lands practically worthless for agricultural purposes. But I did not know at the time we were about 300 miles from Cape Flattery, its extreme north-west corner, and something like 200 miles from its southern boundary. The speedy train, however, was not long spanning this desolate looking region, and almost before we were aware of it was spinning and flitting along the bases of velvet tufted foot hills and table lands, over beautiful streams and, along wide, flat stretching lakes, whose clear rippling waters made them glisten and gleam in the bright morning sun with a silvery beauty.

As the sun neared the horizon soon the shadows of the foot hills and peaks of the "cascades" flitted across our path, and the base of the hills brought with it quite a different impression from that of the early dawn. From the eastern boundary to the west of Puget Sound, the transition from bad to good is complete, and the contrast as to night. Every league brings with it a marked change in contour of land and quality of soil. Some of the finest grazing lands in the country are embraced within the confines of the table lands and foot hills of the mountains. Vast areas of lands, inaccessible for tillage purposes, are perpetual feeding grounds for the herds and the bunch grasses are exceedingly nutritious.

Like all other countries, Washington has its good and bad phases of land and climate, but far less of the latter than any place in existence—the winters lasting usually over a period of about four or five weeks.

Many thousands acres of land, after being denuded of timber, are utterly worthless, except for fruits, grazing and minerals, while the great bulk of plains and valleys are especially fine for all agricultural purposes. No sensible man going to a new country would think of buying land without a full knowledge of its character.

Without the huge system of mountains, which are the backbone of the State, rapid streams and rivers, the great bulk of the country would be practically barren waste; but here is one of the grandest provisions of nature in the whole world, and nowhere else do I believe the handiwork of the Creator is so visibly shown as in these rugged, silent, and majestic mountains of sternity, monumental to the stupendous upheaval force which gave them perpetuity.

Where these mountains become too rugged for agriculture and grazing there still remains a utility of purpose to further the interests of the population. They are rich in minerals as well as being the source of exhaustless water supply for irrigating purposes.

On the east side of the Cascades last year there were as many as 350 days of sunshine, and I was credibly informed this was in keeping with the general run of weather from one year to another. Under these conditions the idea struck me that there would be endless dust and everything parched while the sun shined, for there is some wonderful atmospheric influence that abates them and renders the place very pleasant. All persons opposed to such a move ought to halt this section with joy.

Nothing but snow fall there. Eighteen inches of snow has been known to cover the great bulk of the high grounds three days after the farmers were ploughing their fields for wheat. Where tons of good soil here in Kentucky are washed away by ordinary rains, there, no matter how hilly or undulating, not a thinblift is ever moved. Any ranger would naturally ask, as I did, how could eighteen inches depth of snow melt inside of two days without flooding the streams and washing soil fences and everything in its path away? But it does it without these effects, nevertheless, and disappears, magic like, by evaporation and all by the power of that wonderful chinook wind.

The soil is very porous, absorbs water like a sponge, and is exceedingly retentive of moisture, and is not being hot and dry they would not feel 20° below zero as much as we would our damp, penetrating, biting cold at zero. Indeed, the excellent qualities of the country are so manifold that nothing short of a residence there could thoroughly convince any one of its realities. If unvarying regularity of seasons, delightful beyond description, combined with good qualities of soil, bringing about a condition promotive of the complete contentment of mankind, does not satisfy one's curiosity as to what a country and its possibilities are, then that person can not be satisfied. So much for the bright and dark side of its eastern picture.

It is clearly evident, from fossil remains and gravel beds, that the whole of the country west of the Cascades was once the bed of the ocean and will not stay in the geological formation of the remainder). One of the greatest drawbacks to agriculturist there are the gravel and pebbles formations found in many localities, especially on high grounds. Where these are found in excess the land is useless, except for orchards and grazing. But no emigrant need go there with his eyes open and buy land and build a good home when there are so many thousand acres of the richest soil in the world adjacent. The next obstacle is the rainy season, which lasts, usually, over a period ranging from October to the middle of April. But while it is raining in midwinter it is very mild and never freezes to a solid mass.

These rains are, by no means, incessant, as I was led to suppose, nor do they come down with one-third the force and penetration of ordinary winter and spring rains do here. I have seen twenty-four hours of rain equal to a whole week of average daily rains there. One of the oldest citizens told me, however, that he had seen the time, once only, when it rained incessantly through February and March. The most I saw was one week, then it would hold up and remain cloudy or sunshiny several days, and so on through the season, but the people kept busy all the same.

While the rain brings them mud roads, the heavy rain beds, as the country settles up, are at hand for construction of gravel roads. Of the tenement houses are not to be found there as in settled countries, and emigrants who do not take this into account make a mistake. The water in the remote districts would be as much at a loss without his dog and Winchester as Daniel Boone would have been in the primitive forest of Kentucky without his faithful friend and trusty flintlock. The howling of wolves, lynx and wild cats, the growl of bray, cry of panther, roar of mountain lion and the anthers of splendid elk and deer suffice to make man, dog and Winchester constant companions. So much for the bright and dark sides of the western picture.

After this feeble effort I here add, with the approval of the readers and license of the editor, what I consider some choices of what the editor of the Detroit Free Press has to say relative to the Yakima county on the east side, dwelling on the subject of irrigation, viz: "The descent of these streams is so rapid that it is easy to land ditched and watered from them through the soft soil to irrigate as large tracts as may be desired. The main ditches are easily dug and when they are done all the farmer has to do when he desires to let the water on his fields is to run furrows from the main ditches through the fields. When there is sufficient moisture in the land a few minutes work with the hoe shuts off the stream and the crops grow on without danger of drought or flood. It is better than the rain direct from the clouds, for the water goes just where you want it to go, and in such volume as you want it. Under this system the Yakima county is capable of growing a remarkable range of vegetable products. All the small grains—wheat, oats, barley, rye, buckwheat, etc., grow as well as in any part of the country. Corn and clover are grown to perfection and sorghum is an excellent crop. Vegetables and root crops of all sorts yield abundantly. One of the most valuable crops here is alfalfa, which there is a very large acreage. All the ordinary fruits flourish, including the finest quality of peaches, apples, grapes, and strawberries, which can be grown to complete satisfaction. In short, it is the paradise of the agriculturist—a region where he can raise all the crops and produce any crop under the sun. Eastern farmers will read this and accuse me of exaggeration, but let them go there and see for themselves. I might be able to exaggerate in writing of this section, but I doubt it. The word Yakima, an Indian name, is said to mean a great meadow garden. Whether this is a correct definition or not, that is almost what the country amounts to after it has been irrigated and cultivated. I have met many surprises in Washington. One of these is what I have learned of the climate. I have met persons from Michigan and other States who have been cured of pulmonary diseases by a short residence there. The climate of this particular section is peculiarly adapted to the health of persons who have been cured of pulmonary diseases by a short residence there. The climate is very dry and the sun is so hot that it is almost impossible to stand in the sun. In the summer the heat is not oppressive. The lingering snows and heavy frosts of the mountains near by lend to the breezes a refreshing coolness, and then that current from the ocean brings health and comfort and makes the country at all times delightful."

Now here is what the most brilliant lawyer and famous man of the world to-day said in a speech at a banquet given in his honor there: "What a treasure vault to the scientist is the wonderful geological strata of Washington, where we can wander over the steel-ribbed hills and feel the throbbing pulse of mother earth. What a paradise to tourists where we can sail from the ocean and climb down deep gorges until its body is mutilated by the heavy down and rises to kiss the clouds under a veil of mist. What a view for landscape painters, where mountains, torn apart by ancient floods, are standing in columns like sentinels entrusted with the keeping of a view for landscape painters, where apples in the gardens of the Hesperides. No one need seek for mountain scenery in a foreign land where the eye can feast upon such majestic grandeur as Mt. Rainier, that rears its proud head almost to the azure blue of heaven, with its crown covered with perpetual snow. If you seek to try your metal with noble game, brave the grizzly bear, the broad horned elk, the fleet footed deer in the almost primeval forest of the Pacific coast. Seek not the grapes of France till your lips have kissed the luscious juices of the western fruits. If you seek for beautiful farming lands, gaze as I have done, upon the valleys of the Puget Sound country, teeming with the grandest gems of vegetation, where the roses and the violet, the lily and the golden rose bud, blow in the open air, and the atmosphere is heavy with their fragrant fumes; where the cattle browse in meek contentment among the grasses that reach their flanks; where they stand knee deep in the crystal flood and quench their thirst in the cool springs that gurgle and spout from the hidden streams that find their way to the surface and form streams to feed the meadow lands, where they are led to sleep and sweet music from the tiny throats of birds of brilliant hue; where the trees grow to such majestic proportions as to cause the kings of Virginia to bow their heads as it were in subservience. What a prospect of joy it must be to the farmer who resides in Kansas, Dakota and Colorado to gaze on such a country as Washington, devoid of all crop destroying pests and the surrounding mountains that shelter the dwellings and fields from the devastating and pitiless tornado; where the soil is so rich in the natural phosphates that every branch of husbandry can be carried on; where the luxuriant grasses grow in profusion, tinting the landscape with green and gold, with purple and crimson; where such is the marvelous luxuriance of nature that each tree or vine weakens or actually destroys its neighbor by excessive production, unless the watchful eye of the farmer prevents, as its bearing is more than the soil can support; permit; to see the mountains covered with a dense forest that can be utilized for his home, his barns and fences; where the hand of generous nature has deposited in the rocky fastnesses of the earth great stratas of coal to warm the body; surrounded with wealth, sufficient to have stricken speechless with amazement the Phœnician miners of Cadiz; and where the farmer, having made its wealth so apparent to the naked eye that the miners will come and cause the valleys to vibrate with the metallic ring of the hammer and steel, and by his reward share with all the avenues of trade within the gift of nature; where the farmer can get such gain as to overproduction; or by the aid of deep water courses the Pacific kisses the golden decked sands of Washington, and a nation's wealth is given for the great ships that will be built from the timber grown on Puget Sound soil, and under the glorious stars and stripes they will bear the surplus product to the less fortunately located climes of China, Japan and Australia. Truly Puget Sound is an emigrant's Eden. Every spot is a garden and every garden is a production of fruits and flowers of all kinds—every fruit of luscious sweetness and every flower bearing its own sweet perfume. And while our lands of the eastern States are robbed in the pitiless mantle of white, and the birds and cattle shiver in their own sweat, and the hand of the farmer is practically paralyzed by the ice and frost, and his site restless and fretful for the return of spring that he can begin his planting, is all different on Puget Sound. The valley lands are green and fruits and flowers grow and beauty to the scene. The air is filled with sweet melody from the tiny throats of birds, and the children roan and play, warm and contented, under the soft and genial sun. A wonderful fact of nature—the soft chinook wind."

I only ask your readers to take the above trail of eloquence into consideration. Coming from the source they do, they are gems of thought worth preserving. These two extracts virtually cover all the good ground of information relative to Washington. D. MEADE WOODSON.

From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd, of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. The Wonderful Tower.
The highest structure in the world is the Eiffel Tower, at Paris, 1,600 feet high. But the great discovery of Dr. Franklin Miles is certain to tower far above it in promoting human happiness and health. This wonderful nerve medicine builds up worn-out systems, cures dizziness, headache, nervous prostration, dizziness, sleeplessness, morbidly pains, sexual troubles, etc. Mrs. John R. Miller, of Valparaiso, Ind., and Taylor, of Logansport, Ind., gained 20 pounds a month while taking it. Finely illustrated treatise on "Nervous Diseases" and sample bottle of the Restorative Nerve free at J. W. Gayle's drug store, who guarantees it.

Before and After Using.
At one time I had awful Sores and Pimples on my face, and after using two bottles of E. S. S. I was cured, and now have a nice, smooth complexion.

My Life a Burden.
I was afflicted from infancy with Catarrh and with eruptions on my face for ten years. I was attended by the very best physicians, and tried a number of blood purifiers, without permanent relief. The mineral ingredients settled in my bones, and caused Rheumatic twinges. My life was a burden to me, and my case was declared incurable, when I saw S. S. S. advertised. Eight bottles cured me entirely, and I feel like a new person.

Kentucky's Great $5,000 Stake.
Of the eleven original nominators in the great $5,000 guaranteed stake at the meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association at Lexington, Ky., October 13 to 20 not one has declared out, and horsemen predict that this will be the greatest betting event, and one of the grandest races ever trotted in America. The horses will be named October 1st, and any horse that had a record no better than 2:10 on June 2d can start. It is more than likely, therefore, that the starters will come from the following: Prince Regent, Mambrino Maid, Pampico, Keno F. Mary Marshall, McDoel, Pacey, Walter E. Hinder Wilkes, Brown, J. R. Shedd, Jean Valjean, Diamond Acolyte, Leopold Rose, Steve Siglite and Hendrix, everyone of which can beat 2:20 and the most of them beat 2:17. Excursions will be run from all parts of the country, many coming from the East in their private cars, and every Kentuckian should be on hand to welcome those who come so far to see so great a race.

Everybody patronize the Noss Family, because their performances are clean and full of wit and humor, and are the theme of praise every where.

Thirty Years.
Thirty years of earnest devotion to certain specialties of medical science in a practice which for extent and success stands unequalled, has enabled Dr. Bogman, who has so long visited our city, to promptly and successfully treat all cases which he has accepted for treatment. His practice has increased from the first visit until it has reached vast proportions. His patients, of whom there are many in this county, speak in the highest terms of praise of his successful treatment and of his character as a gentleman. His methods are those of the latest requirements of medical science, while his experience enables him to promptly recognize disease, its cause and its cure. He will be at the Capital Hotel, Wednesday, October 1st, on his regular visit.

The Noss Family introduce a great number of specialties in the comedy sketch, "A Quick Match."

DO NOT SUFFER ANY LONGER.
Knowing that a cough can be checked in a day, and the first stages of consumption broken in a week, we hereby guarantee Dr. Acker's English Cough Remedy, and will refund the money to all who buy, take it as per directions, and do not find our statement correct.
J. W. GAYLE, Druggist.

The Noss Family's farcical comedy, "A Quick Match," suits everybody. Has plot enough to make it interesting, comedy enough to make it very funny, sentiment and music enough to make it an evening long to be remembered.

In East India they use microbes, the insects which cause chicken cholera, to destroy English rabbits. In America they use (Acker's) magic chicken cholera cure to destroy microbes. For sale by P. H. Carpenter.

THAT HACKING COUGH can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's Cure. We guarantee it. For sale by J. W. Gayle.

THAT TERRIBLE COUGH In the morning, hurried or difficult breathing, rattling phlegm, tightness in the chest, quickened pulse, chilliness in the evening or sweats at night, all or any of these things are the first stages of consumption. Dr. Acker's English Cough Remedy will cure these fearful symptoms, and is sold under a positive guarantee by J. W. GAYLE, Druggist.

Don't fail to see the Noss Family in "A Quick Match." It is one of the brightest and most sparkling musical comedies. It is immensely funny. It is positively original, and is novel in conception.

CROUP, WHOOPING COUGH and Bronchitis immediately relieved by Shiloh's Cure. For sale by J. W. Gayle.

The Press says that the Noss Family have become famous throughout the country as they do just what they advertise.

Put on the Brakes.
If you find you are going down hill in point of health. Failing strength, impaired digestion and assimilation, loss of marks of decline. Check these and other indications of premature decay with the great vitalizer and restraining tonic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Remedies of the fountain head, the stomach, the Bitters counteracts its influence, corrects its errors, and sets it to work. The digestive organ is thus enabled to thoroughly separate from the food its nutritive principles, and to assimilate its elements. This is the system that best and best nourishes the body, and prevents waste of its tissues. Appetite, the power to rest well, & comfort, and are also re-established, and the various functions move once more in their normal and healthy groove. The Bitters, moreover, is a specific for and preventive of malaria, biliousness, indigestion, diarrhoea and kidney troubles.
